With the Defence White Paper (DWP) drawn up, we now have a roadmap to guide the Malaysian Armed Forces (MAF) for the next ten years. This blueprint is a significant leap for MAF, who will be using it to defend the country's sovereignty and security. One of the main highlights in the DWP is cybercrime, which is a challenging threat to handle as it is ever evolving.

Cybercrime is something that we all have to deal with on a daily basis as it ranges from espionage to scams, identity and intellectual property theft and even terrorism and cyber-criminal acts. We find ourselves constantly researching new ways to tackle these threats as it unfolds. We have a long way to go before we can find effective ways to not only tackle these threats but also to stay ahead.

MAF is pleased to be participating in the upcoming DSA & NATSEC (National Security) Asia 2022. Since its inception, DSA is not only instrumental in highlighting the latest technologies related to global defence and security but is also an ideal platform to form partnerships among local and foreign armed forces as well as with other local agencies. These efforts will certainly go a long way in creating a more effective synergy in regional defence, for the improved security and safety of its people.

As the MAF continues to build ties with our allies and friends from across the globe, we look forward to once again being part of DSA & NATSEC Asia 2022, which compliments the engagement strategy of the MAF in enhancing cooperation and collaboration with our friends from around the world. I am looking forward to the meeting with delegation from all over during DSA & NATSEC Asia 2022.

Thank you.
