YDH. CP DATO' SRI MOHD SHUHAILY BIN MOHD ZAIN
DIRECTOR GENERAL,
THE MALAYSIAN BORDER CONTROL AND PROTECTION AGENCY (AKPS)

In an era where national security transcends traditional frontiers, borders are no longer mere lines on a map. They are living systems — gateways for trade, travel, and innovation — yet also the frontlines against threats that evolve in speed, scale, and sophistication. Safeguarding Malaysia's sovereignty amid these complexities demands not only vigilance, but also strategic foresight, agility, and integration.

The Malaysian Border Control and Protection Agency (AKPS), established under the Border Control and Protection Agency Act 2024 [Act 860], embodies Malaysia's commitment to modern, unified, and intelligence-led border management. As a newly formed agency under the Ministry of Home Affairs, AKPS is entrusted with harmonising border operations across land, sea, and air gateways — turning policy ambition into operational precision.

Since our operationalisation in January 2025, AKPS has assumed command of 22 key entry points nationwide. As we advance toward Phase Two — to expand oversight to all 125 international gateways by January 2026 — we are moving beyond administrative realignment into a new architecture of governance: one that is integrated, data-driven, and technology-enabled.

This transformation will be supported by the deployment of biometric authentication, automated cargo and vehicle scanning systems, AI-powered risk analytics, and real-time data integration — collectively shaping a border ecosystem that is smart, secure, and seamless.

But technology alone does not define strength. Discipline, accountability, and integrity form the foundation of every successful transformation. AKPS is committed to fostering a culture of transparency, ethical leadership, and continuous improvement, ensuring that our personnel and systems uphold the highest standards of professionalism in every aspect of service delivery.

The Defense Services Asia (DSA) and National Security (NATSEC) Asia 2026 Exhibition and Conference stands as a world-class platform that unites defence, security, and border professionals in pursuit of shared excellence. For AKPS, this event represents more than participation — it is an opportunity to connect vision with capability, innovation with implementation, and national priorities with regional partnerships.
